Gallery Revisited is opening its new space in Silver Lake. The gallery opened in 2003 in Chinatown. It was located in a 9-story industrial building, then later at Bamboo Lane. This will begin the Gallery Revisited 3rd year of business at its 3rd location.

"'3's a charm' as they say", quips owner Leora Lutz. Confident in perseverance, the gallery will continue to exhibit Los Angeles artists of deserving merit & recognition.

Shows will circle around 3 concepts:

Consumerism & Product, Lyrics & Dialogue, Small is Large

There are 3 exhibition areas within the space:

Main Gallery, Open View flat file & Art Items, Salon

Artists' Mediums:

Photography, paintings, sculpture, collage; Gummi Bears, Felt, Punk-Rock, Paper, Plastic, Cleaning Supplies, Oils, Thread, Lights, Sculpty, Vinyl, Wood...

Program:

Gallery Revisited will continue to cultivate relationships with alternate art organizations such as LA Art Association, Tarfest, Lifescapes Magazine & more, with invitations for cross-publicity to further strengthen art alliance in Los Angeles. A Comment Box will be implemented to create dialogue amongst artists & visitors to the gallery in a personal yet non-intimidating way.

Shows will be conceptually stimulating & accessible in order to create a balance between the needs of art critics and any viewer, while sustaining non-boring substance that will appeal to collectors & art fans in between.

"location, location,location"

Leora Lutz felt it was time to relocate to Silver Lake; a neighborhood known for independent galleries, eclectic fashion, excellent dining, several live music venues, watering holes & many more choices for her clients to have a fulfilling art-living experience. Everything is within a 5 block walking distance on Sunset Boulevard, East of Sunset Junction & West of Alvarado; a well-rounded destination, indeed.
